A 2012 rape case is close to being resolved in Henry County Circuit Court. Dwayne Ray Whitman, 57, of Pendleton, was indicted in August of 2012 and charged with one count of rape in the second degree, one count of sodomy in the second degree and three counts of sexual abuse in the first degree for alleged sexual contact with a female victim who was 13 years old at the time. According to court records, sexual abuse against the victim took place

McIntosh donates his 240th pint

BY CHRIS BROOKE
editor@hclocal.com

Normally, a Red Cross blood donor might receive cookies and juice after they give, but a Sulphur resident received a slice of cheesecake with a candle on top at his most recent donation. John McIntosh reached two milestones on March 6. He donated pint number 240, for a lifetime total of 30 gallons, the same day as he turned 80 years old. “I started in 1958, working at Louisville Gas and Electric,” he said about donations to the Red Cross. “They set up a mobile unit at the company and they wanted people to sign up to give. Kind of became a habit, I guess. I never dreamed I’d give this much.” McIntosh has gone faithfully every

Road crews smooth out the rough patches

BY CHRIS BROOKE

Plenty of sunshine and snow melt means pothole season has arrived for Henry County roads. It still felt a little cool out as the sun started to emerge from the haze at about 9 a.m. March 12 on Hwy. 202 as a Kentucky Transportation

Cabinet road crew continued to work their way north, near Smith-Berry Winery. Joe Mobley, Bradley Lyons and James Waford shoveled and raked the cold mix into a cluster of potholes in the blacktop as Kent Wilson inched the dump truck forward toward the community known as Drennon. They expected to have plenty of this kind of maintenance to do after the bitterly cold temperatures, the snow and the return of spring-like weather to complete the freeze-thaw cycle. State highway workers spilt up into four- and six-person teams to provide these temporary fixes while waiting for the six to eight weeks for about 57 years. Donors of whole blood have to wait 56 days between visits.

DRENNON CREEK OR DRENNON LAKE?

MELISSA BLANKENSHIP/LOCAL

Above, Drennon Creek as viewed from the left and right sides of the bridge on Franklinton Road near its intersection with Hwy. 202 under normal water levels. Below, following days of snowmelt and last week's rain-fall, the creek flowed up and out of its banks, resembling more of a lake as it filled up the creek bottom on both sides. The water has begun to recede.

"They need blood, so I just keep in the flow," he explained. "It's like going to church — if you might not go back. So, you have to keep in the groove, so to speak."

Now that he's retired, McIntosh can occasionally catch a blood drive close to home, but most times he travels to the Red Cross Center on Hubbards Lane in St. Matthews.

"There's a need for it, and I feel like that's one small contribution I can make to help my fellow man."

Giving whole blood is quick, taking maybe 15 minutes to complete, McIntosh said. He's used to the process. It helps that needles don't make him feel squeamish.

The donation center staff remembered that McIntosh planned to come in on his 80th birthday.

"They sliced a cheese-cake and put a candle on it, and the workers gave that to me and sang 'Happy Birthday,'" he said. "They made it a little special."

McIntosh wishes more people would give. He knows bad winter weather usually leads to a drop in donors and shortages of supplies.

McIntosh's 240-pint donation fell within Red Cross Month, designed to recognize those who support the humanitarian organization with donations of time, money and blood. Blood donors are everyday heroes, Red Cross officials said.

"We say that each donation — one pint — has the potential to save three lives when it's separated into three different blood products," Red Cross spokeswoman Lindsay English in Louisville, said. "So if you do the math, eight pints in a gallon, 30 gallons — 240 pints translates into 720 potential lives saved. That is a true accomplishment!"

"Generous donors, like John, are what the Red Cross mission is all about. He has literally touched hundreds of lives by simply rolling up his sleeve. I hope his dedication will inspire others to find a blood drive near them and give the gift of life," said Tim Ryerson, CEO of the River Valley Blood Services Region.

With storms that brought snow, freezing rain and severe cold, Red Cross officials appreciate unwavering donors like McIntosh all the more. English noted March storms forced the cancellation of 81 blood drives in this region, causing more than 2,300 blood and nearly 50 platelet donations to go uncollected.

Two opportunities to give blood in Henry County are coming up: March 24 from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. at Henry County High School and March 31 from 2:30 to 6:30 p.m. at New Castle Christian Church.

McIntosh plans to continue giving blood as long as his health holds out.

"Hopefully, it helped somebody," McIntosh simply summed up his many years of donations.

Kentucky continues to battle epidemic of heroin

When it comes to illegal drug use, few states have been hit as hard as Kentucky over the last 15 years. We have lost thousands of loved ones during that time to a rising tide of meth, synthetic drugs, prescription drug abuse and heroin, and tens of thousands more have seen their lives ruined.

The General Assembly has responded by passing a series of laws, many of them hailed as national models, that have had real, lasting success against these epidemics.

But the battlefield, as some say, constantly changes, and this year, the focus is on heroin.

Its usage has grown dramatically, and not just in Kentucky. Earlier this month, the U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention reported that overdose deaths attributed to this drug have gone up 400 percent nationally between 2000 and 2013. For the Midwest, the rate was

Rick Rand
State Representative

1,100 percent.

In Kentucky, five percent of overdose victims had heroin in their system in 2011, but two years later, that figure was up to 32 percent. A recent statewide poll, meanwhile, found that 13 percent of Kentuckians said they knew of someone who had died from heroin or was addicted to it.

Over the last several months, but especially in the last few weeks, a group of House and Senate members has been working on what we all hope will be another groundbreaking law. The plan is to resolve the remaining differences when the General Assembly returns to the Capitol to finish this year's legislative session on March 23rd and 24th.

In many ways, the compromise bill the House offered Wednesday evening to move discussions forward follows the same approach that has served as the foundation of our other drug-related laws. It proposes much harsher penalties for those bringing heroin into Kentucky while expanding treatment for the addicts. Past lessons have taught us that we cannot incarcerate ourselves out of this problem.

That does not mean our drug laws are lax; on the contrary, they're some of the toughest in the nation. The House proposal, now included in Senate Bill 192, builds on that by significantly ramping up penalties for those found with a kilogram or more of heroin.

Our legislation also calls for re-directing some of the savings from 2011's reforms of our criminal justice system to expand current substance abuse treatment programs. This would help addicts who are pregnant, who are in our local jails and who rely on our community mental health centers.

Two provisions new to Kentucky – but not to many other states – would authorize a Good Samaritan law and a local-option needle exchange program.

The former would hopefully encourage more addicts to report someone who is overdosing; as it is, too many are afraid to take this step because they fear being arrested. If this passes, those calling authorities in good faith would not be charged for possessing drugs themselves. Nearly two dozen states already have this in place.

About 35 states, meanwhile, allow local communities to implement needle exchanges, including five of the seven states surrounding us. Research has shown these programs make it more likely addicts will get the treatment they need, and the programs also reduce the prevalence of dirty needles in our communities and a rise in blood-borne diseases like hepatitis.

To help get these programs up and running as soon as possible, the House proposal recommends shifting $10 million in the current two-year budget to these new programs. We cannot afford to wait until the next budget cycle.

While the heroin legislation is arguably the most important unresolved issue for the General Assembly to finalize later this month, there are several others as well. House Bill 8, which would make several new groups of victims eligible for civil protective orders, is one, and two others would stabilize the state's highway funding and strengthen the long-term future for the Kentucky Teachers' Retirement System. Many other new laws, which I will cover more in the weeks ahead, have already passed.

Considering that the General Assembly lost a number of days to snow and cold weather, this 30-day legislative session nonetheless holds a lot of potential when it comes to landmark laws. My hope is that this will prove to be the case when the General Assembly adjourns.

If you have any thoughts or concerns about these issues, please let me know.

My address is Room 366B, Capitol Annex, 702 Capitol Avenue, Frankfort, KY 40601; or you can email me at Rick.Rand@lrc.ky.gov.

Flurry of bills pass Senate and House as session nears end

The three days that the Kentucky General Assembly was in session this week started on Monday with news that the first new law of 2015 had taken effect and ended on Wednesday night with a flurry of bills passing both chambers before the Senate and House adjourned shortly before midnight.

Lawmakers are now in a nine-day recess and will return to the Capitol for the final two days of the 2015 session on March 23 and 24.

One of the first bills of the current session that lawmakers sent to Gov. Steve Beshear gained his signature on Monday, becoming the first new state law of the year. House Bill 298 will make possible the construction of a state-of-the-art medical research center to target prevalent diseases in Kentucky, including cancer, diabetes and cardiovascular disease.

The legislation authorizes the issuance of $132.5 million in bonds to build the research center at the University of Kentucky. The university will raise money an additional amount so that the $265 million research center can be built.

HB 298 contained an emergency clause, which allowed the bill to take effect as soon as the governor signed it.

At the time of this writing, the governor had also signed into law a telephone deregulation measure and a bill to allow Kentuckians to use a certain kind of health directive to specify their wishes for end-of-life care.

Lawmakers sent a handful of other bills to the governor to be signed into law this week, including measures on the following:

Breeder's Cup. House Bill 134 would reinstate a tax break for the Breeders' Cup at Keeneland in Lexington this year. The legislation would waive the state's excise tax on live pari-mutuel wagering for the event. The waiver of the pari-mutuel excise tax was reportedly worth about $750,000 the last time the event was at Churchill Downs in Louisville.

Charitable gaming. Senate Bill 33 would allow electronic versions of pull-tab Bingo tickets at charitable Bingo halls across the state.

Crowdfunding. House Bill 76 would help Kentucky entrepreneurs to gain investors through crowdfunding. The bill would allow people to invest up to $10,000 through a crowdfunding platform while helping businesses raise up to $2 million.

Drug abuse. House Bill 24 would prevent youth from misusing certain cough medicines to get high — sometimes called "robotripping" — by restricting access to medicines that contain dextromethorphan. The bill would prevent sales of dextromethorphan-based products, such as Robitussin-DM or Nyquil, to minors.

Early childhood development. House Bill 234 would require early child care and education programs to follow a state quality-based rating system.

Gambling. SB 28 would make it clear in the law that it's illegal for so-called Internet cafes to sell Internet access to play computer-based, casino-style games, or sweepstakes, in which customers can win cash prizes

Kentucky Employee Retirement System. House Bill 62 would make sure the agencies that want to leave the Kentucky Employee Retirement System pay their part of the system's unfunded liability.

Newborn health screening. SB 75 requires newborn health screenings to include checks for Krabbe Disease, an inherited disorder that affects the nervous system.

Sexual assault. Senate Joint Resolution 20 would direct the Auditor of Public Accounts to study the number of sexual assault examination kits in the possession of Kentucky police and prosecutors that have not been sent to the state's forensic lab for testing. The resolution is aimed at helping the state know the scope of a backlog that needs attention.

Schools. SB 119, as amended, would help schools deal with the unusually high number of "snow days" caused by a harsh winter. The bill would give school districts until June 5 to complete all 1,062 school instructional hours required by the state. Any remaining hours that cannot be made up could be waived by the state. School days would not be allowed to exceed seven hours or be held on Saturdays. SB 119 also contains provisions that would require school administrators, teachers, office staff, teaching assistants, coaches and other employed by a school district to receive training on ways to recognize and prevent child abuse.

Spina bifida. SB 159 would require health care providers to give information about spina bifida and treatment options to parents whose unborn children have been diagnosed with the disorder.

Strokes. Senate Bill 10 would improve care for stroke victims by requiring the state to make sure local emergency services have access to a list of all acute stroke-ready hospitals, comprehensive stroke centers, and primary stroke centers in Kentucky. Emergency medical services directors would be required to create protocols for assessment and treatment of stroke patients for stroke victims.

Veterans. House Bill 209 would create "Gold Star Sibling" specialty license plates for Kentuckians with a sibling who died while serving in the U.S. armed forces. The plates would be based on the Gold Star plates already available to parents and spouses.

There are bills that many lawmakers hope to see passed after the veto recess, most notably some form of anti-heroin legislation. Both chambers have passed bills to strengthen sentences against traffickers and to provide more treatment options to addicts, but some of the differences between each chamber's bills are still being negotiated. Leaders in both chambers have expressed optimism that an anti-heroin bill will be approved before the 2015 session adjourns.

Citizens can provide their input by calling the General Assembly's Message Line at 1-800-372-7181. People with hearing difficulties may contact lawmakers by calling the TTY Message Line at 1-800-896-0305.

Letter to the Editor

Family connection to The Locker

I can shed some light on the history of The New Castle Implement Company, featured in the Local edition of March 4. The gentleman on the left in the picture, A. Thornton Ellis, is my father, and in the middle is Harvey Stone Ellis, my grandfather. My father's full name was Anthony Thornton Ellis and I am Anthony Thornton Ellis, Jr.

The history of my branch of the Ellises in Henry County goes back to James Parrish Ellis, who arrived in what is now New Castle about 1830. He is buried in one of the Ellis plots in the New Castle cemetery. In studying the history of the Ellises, James Parrish, known as Jimmy P., was the first sheriff of the county.

Then there was a succession of Ellises who were farmers, merchants, and bankers who lived in the county. My dear sister, Anne Ellis LaMaster, lovingly known as Puddin', died last spring in New Castle. Her daughter, Mary Roberts, and family still carry on the Ellis tradition of living in the county.

I have an Ellis family bible and in it is a picture of what is now known as the Stambaugh home, where Harvey and his family lived, and The Ellis Corner, several stores on Main Street just north of the Implement store.

Where my father and I get the Anthony Thornton part of the name is from my grandmother, Annette Thornton Ryland. That is an interesting story in itself. She came to New Castle with her father, Robert Ryland, after the Civil War. Robert had been the first president of Richmond College in Richmond, Va., now the University of Richmond. The College was essentially destroyed after the Union Army occupied Richmond and Robert moved to Kentucky to be president of several small colleges in the Henry and Shelby County area.

His daughter, Annette, married my grandfather, Harvey Ellis. When Robert Ryland died at 92, the Trustees of Richmond College (now restored), had his body brought back to Richmond and buried him in Hollywood Cemetery in the Richmond College plot. The story goes that the students were let out of school to attend the burial ceremony.

On a personal note, I have just turned 86 and my wife of 58 years, Jane, and I live happily in San Mateo, California.

We didn't miss your winter at all! We have three children and seven grandchildren, all doing well. The oldest grandchild, Ryland Webb, is graduating from Amherst College this May. The others are in various stages of being in colleges and being accepted at colleges.

I hope this has been helpful to you, Jeff Thoke, and Joe Yates, and will fill in a few blanks about this historical building.

— Tony Ellis, San Mateo, Calif.

Judges participate in 2015 Judges College

Henry County circuit and family courts judges Karen Conrad and Timothy Feeley, who both serve Henry County, participated in the 2015 Circuit Judges Winter College that took place recently in Louisville.

The Administrative Office of the Courts provided the education program for the state’s circuit judges. The judges attended courses on domestic violence, science and the law, computer forensics in court, alternative ways to resolve disputes in cases, personal jurisdiction, judicial writing for trial judges, evolving areas of law and recently published cases, and court technology, including eFiling.

With eFiling, attorneys can file cases electronically. The program is now available in 26 Kentucky counties and will be in every county in the state by the end of 2015.

“eFiling is going to cut down on the time and money it takes to get to a courthouse to file case documents and attorneys can log on anytime of the day or night,” said Jefferson Family Court Judge Stephen M. George, president of the Kentucky Circuit Judges Association. “With clicks of a mouse, attorneys will be able to more efficiently access justice for the people they represent.

“Also, this college was the first for our new circuit judges who took office Jan. 5, so it was a perfect time to welcome them and for the new judges and more experienced judges to discuss a variety of judicial topics.”

The college also offered separate courses for circuit judges with general jurisdiction and those who oversee Family Court cases.

Circuit judges with general jurisdiction had the opportunity to attend courses on scientific evidence and expert testimony, juror selection, property boundary cases, probation and pretrial discovery.

Family Court judges attended a session about Kentucky’s new juvenile code under Senate Bill 200, the juvenile justice reform legislation passed by the General Assembly in 2014. Other courses for Family Court judges focused on self-represented litigants, child custody cases, and trends in dependency, neglect and abuse cases.

The college included 20.75 hours of continuing education credit for the circuit judges.

between June 2011 and February 2012, which included claims that Whitman knowingly masturbated in front of the victim, touched her breasts and private area and engaged in both intercourse and deviant sexual intercourse with the girl.

A citation from Kentucky State Police state that the “victim disclosed that she had been sexually abused by Whitman” and that “Whitman was arrested on probable cause after his DNA was discovered in the victim’s bedroom following the execution of a search warrant corroborating the victim’s accounts of abuse.”

After his indictment and arraignment, Whitman was released to home incarceration on a $20,000 unsecured bond, under the conditions that he have no further violations, have no contact with the victim or the victim’s family except his girlfriend who was related to the victim, and no contact with any minor females.

Since then, Whitman’s court file indicates there have been a series of continuances, exchanges of evidence, and even a request for a psychological evaluation of the victim as her competency was questioned by the defense.

The request for an evaluation was denied by Judge Karen Conrad in June of 2013.

By October of 2014, the Commonwealth’s attorney and the public defender were trying to reach a plea agreement and court documents noted that an offer had been made but not finalized.

Due to health conditions, Whitman was unable to appear in court in December of 2014 and the case was continued. He did appear for a pre-trial conference on March 12, where his public defender told him there was “a problem with the offer.”

The next pre-trial conference is scheduled for June 11, at which time both the prosecution and defense hope to reach an agreement on Whitman’s plea and sentence recommendation.

the asphalt plants to fire up again, Mobley said. One of the trucks has a hot box on it to heat the mix to 175 degrees to make it easier to work with.

By Thursday, road crews had hit various highways in Henry County for three or four days already, including Interstate 71.

All the work is done by hand.

“Sometimes it’s a never ending job,” Mobley said. “Between the pot holes and the flooding and the snow, we’ve been pretty busy for the last few days.”

Transportation employees don’t count each pothole they fill, he said. Instead, they count the total of cold mix they use in order to track how the roads are.

The crew of six used five tons of the patching material in a day. Mobley expected the crew of four would shovel out about three tons of the filler on one shift.

“It just depends on how bad (the potholes) are,” he said.

The Henry County maintenance crew has been out on 15 different days in 2015, performing pothole patching, according to Andrea Clifford, spokeswoman for the Kentucky Transportation Cabinet. They have used approximately 34 tons of cold-mix material. The cost for this material is $3,553.

“Once the weather warms up more and hot –mix asphalt plants start firing up, our crews will be able to obtain hot-mix asphalt for patching potholes,” Clifford said. “This material bonds better to the existing pavement and stays in place longer.”

Labor force in Henry rises as unemployment falls

BY CHRIS BROOKE
editor@hclocal.com

State statistics indicate that unemployment rates dropped by 2 percentage points for Henry County when comparing January 2015 to the same period last year.

Unemployment rates fell in 117 Kentucky counties between January 2014 and January 2015, while Russell County went up, and Boyd and Elliott counties' rates stayed the same, according to the Kentucky Office of Employment and Training, an agency of the Kentucky Education and Workforce Development Cabinet.

Analysts reported Henry County's unemployment rate for this January at 5.6 percent, with 7,194 people working and 425 out of a job but looking, according to the statistics.

“Unlike the state as a whole—where the labor force has declined—the labor force in Henry County was up,” state economist Manoj Shanker said. “That means more people started looking for employment and found it—that's great news.

“The labor force numbers looks at employment by place of residence. That means jobs don't necessarily have to be created within the county, just that people living in the county found jobs.”

According to the 2010 commuting pattern, 81 percent of Henry County residents work outside the county, Shanker said. Most of them work in Jefferson, Oldham, and Shelby.

Woodford County recorded the lowest jobless rate in the Commonwealth at 3.9 percent.

It was followed by Fayette County, 4.3 percent; Scott County, 4.4 percent; Oldham and Shelby counties, 4.5 percent each; Jessamine County, 4.7 percent; Owen and Spencer counties, 4.8 percent each; and Boone, Campbell, Franklin, Madison and Washington counties, 4.9 percent each.

Magoffin County recorded the state's highest unemployment rate — 15 percent.

It was followed by Russell County, 13.1 percent; Elliott and Leslie counties, 12.1 percent each; Wolfe County, 11.8 percent; Carter County, 11.7 percent; Harlan County, 11.5 percent; Breathitt and Letcher counties, 11.1 percent each; and Menifee County, 11 percent.

Unemployment statistics are based on estimates and are compiled to measure trends rather than actually to count people working.

Civilian labor force statistics include non-military workers and unemployed Kentuckians who are actively seeking work.

They do not include unemployed Kentuckians who have not looked for employment within the past four weeks.

The statistics in this news release are not seasonally adjusted because of the small sample size for each county.

The data should only be compared to the same month in previous years.

Kentucky officials tout state's jobless decline in January

Kentucky's seasonally adjusted preliminary January 2015 unemployment rate of 5.5 percent came in below the U.S. rate of 5.7 percent, according to the Office of Employment and Training (OET), an agency of the Kentucky Education and Workforce Development Cabinet.

The state rate matched the revised December 2014 rate of 5.5 percent and was 2 percentage points below the 7.5 percent recorded in January 2014.

“In addition to this great start to 2015, the annual revisions which align data for the past year were released yesterday and revealed that Kentucky's unemployment rate has been below the national rate for the last six months,” said economist Manoj Shanker of the OET. “That's quite an accomplishment. The last time Kentucky's unemployment rate was below the national average for such an extended period was in 1995.”

The U.S. seasonally adjusted jobless rate of 5.7 percent for January 2015 was an increase from the December 2014 rate of 5.6 percent, according to the U.S. Department of Labor.

Labor force statistics, including the unemployment rate, are based on estimates from the Current Population Survey of households. It is designed to measure trends rather than to count the actual number of people working. It includes jobs in agriculture and those classified as self-employed.

In January 2015, Kentucky's civilian labor force was 1,981,284, an increase of 7,757 individuals compared to the previous month. Employment was up by 6,797, and the number of unemployed rose by 960.

In a separate federal survey of business establishments that excludes jobs in agriculture and people who are self-employed, Kentucky's seasonally adjusted nonfarm employment increased by 3,900 jobs in January 2015 from the month before, and jumped by 40,200 positions since January 2014. “The year has begun with the addition of a record number of jobs. The last time Kentucky added over 40,000 jobs was 15 years ago when the economy had been pumped up with the dot com phenomena,” said Shanker. “We won't see too many months with such feverish growth, but it's reassuring to see strong gains in the job market. Over time that should translate into an increase in wages.”

Nonfarm data is provided by the Bureau of Labor Statistics' Current Employment Statistics program. According to this survey, five of Kentucky's 11 major nonfarm North American Industry Classification System (NAICS) job sectors registered gains in employment, while five declined and one stayed the same from the previous month.

Kentucky's manufacturing sector surged by 2,800 jobs in January 2015. Since January 2014, employment in manufacturing has ballooned by 9,000 jobs.

“During the last six months, savings from the low cost of energy have driven up the demand for goods and hence production and employment,” said Shanker.

The state's trade, transportation and utilities sector gained 2,500 jobs in January 2015 compared to December 2014. From a year ago, employment has grown by 10,400 jobs. This is the largest sector in Kentucky accounting for one-fifth of all nonfarm jobs.

The construction sector gained 600 jobs in January 2015 from a month ago. Since January 2014, employment in construction has risen by 4,600 positions.

Employment in the educational and health services sector increased by 100 positions in January 2015, and gained 3,400 jobs over the year.

Health care jobs, which account for nearly 90 percent of employment in this sector, had a month-to-month decrease of 1,000 jobs in January 2015 but expanded by 2,900 positions over last year.

Mining and logging sector jobs dropped by 100 in January 2015. The industry has lost 700 jobs since last January.

MCDONALD'S EMPLOYEE RECOGNIZED

CHRIS BROOKE/LOCAL

After a Facebook post liked dozens of times singling out how nice Margie Bailey is to all customers at the McDonald's in Eminence, owner George Saliba wanted to show his appreciation for her always having a smile for everybody, too. On March 13, Saliba surprised her with a McDonald's watch, a card and $50 in cash to thank her. Bailey said treating people well is just a part of her outlook on life, that if you show people love, you will get love shown to you in return.

Silvers paints with Eastern students

SUBMITTED PHOTOS

Henry County artist Sharon Silvers recently taught a painting lesson to fifth grade students at Eastern Elementary School. The topic this year was Vincent van Gogh. Ms. Moore's class painted van Gogh's church at Auvers while Ms. Eddin's class painted a landscape in the style of van Gogh. "The fifth grade students always look forward to this special art activity, which, for some, is their first experience painting with acrylics on canvas board," Silvers said. Silvers was assisted by Amy Knight, humanities teacher at Eastern. Funding for the annual art project was provided by the Eastern Elementary P.T.O.

Henry County Cattlemen Association to Meet March 23 at 6:30

The next Henry County Cattlemen Association meeting will be held at the Extension Office on Monday, March 23, at 6:30 p.m. The meal is sponsored by the Henry County Farm Bureau Federation and the guest speaker will be Fran McCall, commodities specialist with Kentucky Farm Bureau.

Call the Extension office at 845-2811 by Friday, March 20, to let the Cattlemen know how many to prepare for.

Farmers Market Gearing Up

The Henry County Farmers Market held their organizational meeting last week. They are gearing up to open in April as always.

The market will again be accepting both WIC and Senior Coupons and a few of the farmers will also be certified to accept food stamps this year. Be sure to support these hard working farmers who are providing us with a great source of locally grown, fresh from the garden produce.

Another new addition to the market this year will be several craft classes offered by the Henry County Public Library. Watch for announcements of when these will be.

April 2 — Microprocessor Class: This video class will be held at the Henry County Extension Office and is for individuals participating in the Farmer's Market who want to sell home canned foods.

Cost is $50 for the all-day workshop. Obtain the registration form on-line at <http://www.ca.uky.edu/agcomm/micro/>.

This workshop is required to become a home-based microprocessor in Kentucky. It is the first step in a series which includes recipe approval (at a cost of $5 per recipe), verification of an approved water source and annual certification by the Kentucky Food Safety Branch (with a certification fee of $50 per year).

To qualify, farmers must live and farm in Kentucky.

The final product must contain a fruit, vegetable, nut or herb grown by the farmer.

Products may be sold from the farm, registered farmers markets or certified roadside stands. Once certified, Home-based Microprocessors may sell products such as canned tomatoes and tomato products, pickled fruits and vegetables, salsa, barbecue sauce, pepper or herb jellies, pressure-canned vegetables and low- or no-sugar jams and jellies.

April 23 — AARP Smart Driver Course 10 a.m. to 2 p.m at the Extension Office: Learn defensive driving techniques; proven safety strategies; new traffic laws and rules of the road.

Plus, there are no tests to pass. You simply sign up and learn.

Upon completion you could receive a multi-year discount on your car insurance (check with your agent to learn how much).

You must pre-register as space is limited. Cost is $15 for AARP members and $20 for non-members.

Send your check made out to AARP to us at the Extension Office (Box 246, New Castle).

You must bring your AARP card that day if you are a member.

We will also provide a light pizza lunch for participants. This class is taught by AARP volunteers Glenn and Teresa Woods of Pleasureville and they do an excellent job.

Second Wind Dreams Opportunities: If you are interested in making a dream come true for a senior at Providence New Castle here are a few opportunities coming up that might be something you would like to help with.

On March 27, the committee members are sponsoring a KFC day for lunch. The residents will enjoy Original Recipe Chicken and a visit from a Colonel Sanders look-a-like.

The event will cost about $350 and we have $125 in donations. If you would like to help support this fun day or another dream send your donations to the Henry County Extension Council, Box 246, New Castle, KY 40050.

We also are planning a sewing day event on Saturday, April 18, at the Extension Office from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. at which we will be making "dining scarves," an adult bib. We need washable fabric in one and a half yard pieces. If you have any you would like to donate, drop it by the Extension Office.

We also will be hosting an Elvis and a Frank Sinatra impersonator in the next couple of months.

Our committee meets on the first Tuesday of the month at the Extension Office at 1:30 p.m. Everyone is welcome.

Educational programs of Kentucky Cooperative Extension serve all people regardless of race, color, age, sex, religion, disability, or national origin.

4-H members learn how to be savvy consumers

This month in the 4-H school clubs we have been talking about how important it is to be a savvy consumer.

We discussed what our basic needs are: food, shelter and clothing, as well as their wants.

There was as discussion about how someone may need a new pair of jeans, but do they really need to spend a lot of money for a certain brand name?

I asked students to write down several items that they really want.

While some were predictable there were also unusual ones as well.

The top three among the fourth- and fifth-graders are: new electronics (videos, game systems, and phones), a pet (many species in this group, several monkeys) and cash to spend any way they want.

To my surprise many students wanted hot tubs over pools in their backyards.

One young man said a jet pack and I have to admit I too have always wanted one for myself.

I was also surprised by the number of students that said that they couldn't think of anything that they really wanted or needed.

Following the discussion on wants versus needs we learned about "disposable income" and how that is the money left after paying all the monthly expenses.

Students learned that each family it may be worth it to spend more for the cans since one typically drinks one can at a time and it is easy to have several servings of a soft drink from a two liter, so it may not last as long.

Buying better quality trash bags, paper towels and dishwashing liquid will save money in the long run.

Taking the time to read labels will ensure that consumers buy the healthiest type of fruit chews with very little extra cost associated.

Students also tried out several cleaning formulas I made at the office that cost only a few pennies and a few minutes to mix up.

I made a multi-purpose disinfectant, window cleaner and hand sanitizer. The disinfectant was sprayed on the desks and then cleaned with the paper towels. It worked great.

The window cleaner went up against a name brand and each class found that the one I made worked just as well if not better.

The hand sanitizer I made was the biggest hit. It was overwhelming voted better than the name brand product. The youth learned that by taking very little time and purchasing a few items there are many do-it-yourself recipes that can save consumers a lot of money.

I personally am excited with the results of my homemade cleaning supplies and I am now ready to mix up some laundry detergent I have been hearing about.

Supposedly, I will be able to wash over 100 loads of clothes for under

Now that is a savings I can take to the bank, or use to go toward that jet pack I have always wanted.

4-H Upcoming Opportunities

4-H Camp forms are available on the following site, www.hernycounty4h.com or by calling 845-2811. We will be camping July 7-10, and the cost is $180.

March 18 — Beginning Cooking Club at the extension office from 3:30 till 5 p.m.

March 19 — Sewing Club at the extension office beginning at 3:30 p.m.

March 30 — Communications Event and Variety Show. Please call and sign up at 845-2811.

'Homegrown by Heroes' promotes veterans in agriculture

Agriculture Commissioner James Comer on Monday told national military officials that Homegrown By Heroes "is one small thing that we can do to show our appreciation for our military veteran farmers," according to a news release.

Comer hosted a presentation about Homegrown By Heroes for Col. James P. Isenhower III, director of the Chairman's Office of Reintegration for the U.S. Joint Chiefs of Staff, and Cmdr. Brent J. Embry, USN, Northern Region director of the Chairman's Office of Reintegration.

They were joined by state Rep. Kenny Imes, R-Murray, a member of the House Committee on Veterans, Military Affairs, and Public Safety; Heather French Henry, commissioner of the Kentucky Department of Veterans Affairs; and Homegrown By Heroes producers Alvina

Maynard of Richmond and Danny Townsend of Jeffersonville.

"We think agriculture is a growth industry in the state," Comer said. "Agriculture is a perfect fit for a lot of military veterans. We at the Department of Agriculture are going to do everything we can to help add value to what our military veteran farmers are producing."

The unemployment rate of veterans and reservists in Kentucky is higher than the statewide average, Comer said. He and his senior staff conceived of Homegrown By Heroes as a way to use the popularity of the Kentucky Proud farm marketing program to help Kentucky veterans make a living in agriculture.

More than 80 veteran/farmers are enrolled in Homegrown By Heroes in Kentucky, Comer said.

Over a Kentucky Proud lunch from Wallace Station in Midway, Maynard and Townsend chatted with the guests from the Pentagon about their businesses and products.

Maynard operates River Hill Ranch, which raises Suri alpacas, and Townsend owns Townsend Sorghum Mill, a fifth-generation family farm that produces sorghum and vegetables.

Homegrown By Heroes is a brand that designates agricultural products produced or manufactured by Kentucky military veterans.

Comer launched the program in January 2013, and the brand went national on Veterans Day 2013.

Homegrown By Heroes is administered on the national level by the Farmer Veteran Coalition of Davis, Calif.

For more information about Homegrown By Heroes, go to www.kyproud.com/veterans.

March 18 is set aside to celebrate National Agriculture Day

Kentucky Farm Bureau (KFB) joins the Agriculture Council of America (ACA) and farming organizations across the country to celebrate National Agriculture Day on March 18, according to a news release from Farm Bureau.

This day has been set aside annually since 1973 to highlight the many ways America's food system improves the quality of life for everyone.

"Farmers contribute so much to our nation's prosperity, independence, security and overall well-being that it just makes sense to designate a day celebrating their accomplishments," said KFB President Mark Haney.

National Agriculture Day has been celebrated for more than 40 years now, but Farm Bureau noted that today's farmers grow twice as much food as their parents did back then – and do so using less land, water and energy.

"Even though the total number of farms in the United States has declined during the past several decades, agricultural production continues to meet the needs of a rapidly growing global population. Most of this production is accomplished by the output from family farms," according to Farm Bureau officials.

"Approximately 90 percent of farms in the U.S. are operated by families or individuals, yet, according to the USDA's Economic Research Service, agriculture is one of the few remaining industries in this country with a positive balance of trade. As of February 2015, agricultural trade surplus for the U.S. was forecast at $22.5 billion."

"It is important that all people, but especially our youth, understand the significant role that agriculture plays in everyday life," said Haney.

"Our volunteer leaders will take that message into many of Kentucky's schools on National Agriculture Day."

PUBLIC NOTICE
ORDINANCE #15-01

AN ORDINANCE OF THE CITY OF NEW CASTLE, KENTUCKY ADOPTING AN INCENTIVE PROGRAM FOR CITY OFFICIALS TO OBTAIN TRAINING RELATED TO CITY GOVERNMENT

WHEREAS, the General Assembly passed House bill 119 in the 2011 Regular Session of the Kentucky General Assembly and the bill was signed by the Governor of the Commonwealth to become effective on June 8, 2011;

WHEREAS, House Bill 119 authorizes the city governments of Kentucky to adopt training incentive programs to encourage city officials to obtain education and training related to the operation of city government;

WHEREAS, the City of New Castle recognizes and values the importance of its city officials remaining informed and educated on topics related to city governments and the powers, duties, and responsibilities of city officials; and

WHEREAS, the City of New Castle acknowledges that educated, informed and well-trained city officials will provide a direct public benefit by fostering a deeper understanding of laws, regulations, and by promoting exploration of diversified practices, programs, and delivery of services to the citizens of the City of New Castle

NOW THEREFORE, BE IT ORDAINED BY THE CITY COMMISSION OF THE CITY OF NEW CASTLE, KENTUCKY AS FOLLOWS:

A new subchapter (30.70 et seq.) of the City Code of Ordinance is hereby established:

§30.70: DEFINITIONS

As used in this ordinance, the terms below shall have the following meanings:

(A) "Training unit" means fifteen (15) clock hours of attendance or participation in qualifying courses during a calendar year.

(B) "Training incentive multiplier" means a number of one (1) to four (4) that is determined by the number of training units consecutively earned by the city official and is used to calculate the final training incentive amount to be paid to a city official participating in the City Officials Training Program.

(C) "Base training incentive amount" means $250.00.

(D) "Excess hours" means credit hours earned beyond fifteen (15) during a single calendar year.

(E) "Administrator" shall mean the Kentucky League of Cities City Officials Training Center.

(F) "Qualifying course" shall mean any training, seminar, educational or learning event that provides instruction or information that is relevant to the duties and functions of city government and city officials.

§30.71: ADOPTING OF A CITY OFFICIALS TRAINING PROGRAM; APPLICATION.

In accordance with House Bill 119 of the 2011 General Assembly, as codified in KRS Chapter 64, the City of New Castle hereby adopts and establishes a City Officials Training Program to make available incentive payments as specified by this ordinance to the elected city officials, including the Mayor and all members of the City Commission, the City Clerk and the Director of Public Works for obtaining education and training as required under the provisions of this ordinance.

§30.72: INCENTIVE PAYMENT AMOUNT; REQUIRED TRAINING PARTICIPATION

(A) Each city official eligible for participation in the City Officials Training Program shall receive payment of $250.00 for each calendar year that he or she completes a training unit. Provided that, the city official shall not be awarded more than one (1) training unit per calendar year and shall not receive payment in any single calendar year for the accumulation of more than four (4) training units.

(B) The final training incentive payment to be received by a city official for a specific calendar year shall be determined by the multiplying the base training incentive amount by the training incentive multiplier. The training incentive multiplier is determined by the number of training unit consecutively earned by the city official and shall not exceed four (4). The total training incentive payment shall be made to the city official presenting proof of completion of a training unit for a calendar year within thirty (30) days of the conclusion of the calendar year.

(C) The city official may continue to receive the maximum training incentive payment of the base training incentive amount multiplied by the training incentive multiplier of four (4) for each year following the fourth year, provided that the officer continues to earn a training unit each subsequent calendar year.

(D) The failure of a city official to obtain a training unit during any calendar year shall disqualify the officer from receiving any training incentive payment for the calendar year and the city official shall lose any previously accumulated training units earned during previous calendar years, which shall result in the training incentive multiplier being reset to one (1) in the following calendar years.

(E) Any city official earning excess hours during a calendar year shall be permitted to carry forward a maximum of ten (10) hours to apply to the earning of the training unit in the following calendar years.

§30.73: POLICY REGARDING PAYMENT OF REIMBURSEMENT FOR TRAINING COURSES

Subject to the constraints and the appropriations established by the city's annual budget, the city shall consider paying the cost of attendance or participation in advance of a city official's attendance or participation in the qualifying course if proper application is made to the Mayor or other designated official responsible for budget administration. Alternatively, and subject to the constraints and appropriations established by the city's annual budget, the city shall consider reimbursing a city official for the cost of attendance or participation in a qualifying course upon presentation of proof to the Mayor or other designated official responsible for budget administration that the official has received credit for the course.

§30.74: ADMINISTRATION OF CITY OFFICIALS TRAINING PROGRAM

(A) The City Officials Training Program for the City of New Castle shall be administered by the Kentucky League of Cities City Officials Training Center, which shall be responsible for approving courses as qualifying under the terms of this ordinance, shall maintain records of attendance and participation, and shall notify the city when a city official earns a training unit and the applicable training incentive multiplier applicable to each city official.

(B) The administrator shall evaluate and approve courses as qualifying for credit based on the relation of the course to the operation of city government. In addition to other courses which may be approved as qualifying courses by the administrator, courses that provide instruction on the statutory duties of cities and city official, intergovernmental relationships, municipal finance and budgeting, municipal taxation, ethics, open records, open meetings, economic development, or municipal police powers shall be approved as qualifying courses under this ordinance. The administrator shall require the submission of the course or conference agenda, curriculum, name of the provider, and other course materials to determine whether a course should be approved as a qualifying course.

(C) A city official shall submit proof of attendance or participation in a qualifying course to the administrator. A city official shall submit the course name, date, and location, name of the instructor or provider, and sufficient proof of attendance or participation in the qualifying course before the administrator shall award credit. The administrator shall not award credit to a city official for attendance or participation in a qualifying course that is not, in the administrator's opinion, substantially different from another course the city official attended or participated in during the same calendar year.

(D) The administrator shall maintain records that reflect each of the courses and hours completed by the city official and shall provide it to each city official upon request. The administrator shall, within thirty (30) days of the close of the calendar year, provide written or electronic verification to each participating city official of completed courses and hours, and shall, if applicable, certify the completion of a training unit and the applicable training incentive multiplier. Upon receipt, a city official shall present a copy of the certification of the completion of the training unit and the applicable incentive multiplier to the city in order to receive his or her training incentive payment.

§30.75: STATUS OF INCENTIVE PAYMENTS

(A) Training incentive payments do not constitute wages under KRS Chapter 337, creditable compensation under the County Employees Retirement System under KRS Chapter 78, or compensation for the purposes of setting maximum compensation or modification of compensation under KRS Chapter 83A, and may be repealed or modified by the city at any time.

(B) The base training incentive payment amount established in the ordinance shall not be adjusted by any index reporting changes to consumer prices or any other method to account for inflation.

830.76: SEVERABILITY

Each section and each provision of each section of this ordinance are severable, and if any provisions, section, paragraph, sentence or part thereof, of the application thereof to any person licensee, class or group, is held by a court of law to be unconstitutional or invalid for any reason, such holding shall not affect or impair the remainder of this ordinance, it being the legislative intent to ordain and enact each provision, section, paragraph, sentence and part thereof, separately and independently of the rest.

Big Blue worry wart Whaley signs with Transy

Greg Woods
Sports Editor

It's every Kentucky hoops fan's favorite time of the year. March Madness is kicking into high gear and with the Big Blue Nation waiting anxiously for their favorite team to make history, the stakes are higher than ever.

Last year UK fans in Henry County were faithful to a fault. The vast majority of our Henry Hoopla contestants picked the Wildcats to win it all, only to see them fall to a University of Connecticut team that was on no one's radar. And I mean literally no one. Not a single person in our contest picked UConn to even make the Final Four. After Louisville mauled them in the Big East final, everyone counted the Huskies out of the equation.

This year the experts are pretty much unanimous in picking UK to win it all. The Wildcats ride into the tournament with a 33-0 record. They tore through the SEC tournament with little trouble and are set to do what many thought was impossible – go undefeated through an entire season and postseason.

Many Wildcat fans are brazenly confident that it is just a matter of showing up over the next couple of weeks. Others are worried that an undefeated season and soft SEC schedule might come back to haunt them in the Big Dance.

Count me in the second group. The last time anybody was said to be a lock to go undefeated and win it all was the University of Nevada-Las Vegas Runnin' Rebels of 1991. We all know what happened to that team filled with future NBA stars like Larry Johnson and Greg Anthony, and we all know who the villains were that spoiled that party.

Last year a very good Wichita State team entered the tournament undefeated but no one really thought they could go all the way – especially when they saw the Wildcats in their path.

Some experts think that the devils...uh, Duke Blue Devils are one of a handful of teams that have an outside shot at knocking them off. The Dukies would have to make it to the championship game to do it and I am not sold on their ability to get that far.

I think the Cats will manhandle Manhattan and then romp by Cincinnati before getting a stern test from West Virginia, who might just be able to rebound with them.

But the first real worry for me is Notre Dame. They are an unorthodox team that plays average defense and starts a 6'5" baseball pitcher at the power forward. They are experienced and can shoot the long ball from four positions.

They don't worry so much about their weaknesses but rather focus on doing what they do best, which is passing and shooting. They also showed a steely determination in the ACC tournament against taller, more athletic teams.

Finally, dare I say it; they have the luck of the Irish. If you look back far enough in NCAA history, you will find that it was Notre Dame who stopped another history-making juggernaut – UCLA. The Irish ended the Bill Walton-led Bruins' 88-game winning streak in January of 1974.

You can argue that the 1974 Irish and the 2015 Irish have nothing in common but the name across the jersey. I say the name across the jersey will make this Irish team rise to the occasion and give the Wildcats a very difficult time. But before you start calling me names, I also think these tough-minded Cats will find a way to pull it out in the end.

After the Irish, I think the Cats will face Wisconsin. Some people think that the Badgers are big enough, athletic enough and disciplined enough to beat the Cats. I think we will find out just how good Frank Kaminski really is. But I don't think the Badgers will have enough overall firepower to hang with the Cats.

The Big Blue Nation will see their team head into the final game to face... drum roll please... Iowa State.

The Cyclones are a very good team who had a remarkable streak of comebacks over their final four or five games to finish as the Big 12 tournament champions. They are battle-tested in the toughest conference in the country. They have good athletes and one very good go-to player in Georges Niang. They also have one of the best young coaches in the business in Fred Hoiberg.

Can the Cyclones do in the final what no one else could do all year? I don't think so, but you never know; strange things have happened before. Just ask Bill Walton or Larry Johnson.

Olivia Whaley, center, with her family, committed to play softball for Transylvania University on Thursday

Henry County Lady Cats' softball player Olivia Whaley announced her intention to play softball at Transylvania University in a signing ceremony held in the Henry County High School library Thursday afternoon.

Whaley, a second baseman, had already decided to attend Transylvania for academic reasons but after going to their spring softball camp, committed to play for the Pioneers.

"Softball has always been secondary to education for me," Whaley said. "I wasn't sure about playing until about a month ago. After the camp, their coach called me and said that I would be a great fit for them and that I could definitely play at that level. I had never had anyone tell me that before."

Whaley has a special connection to the school in Lexington. Her mother, Carla, is a Transy graduate.

"She has always pushed me to go there because she went there and has had so much success because of it," Whaley said. "Transy is a good school that is going to give me an education that allows me to succeed in life."

Whaley has a mixture of emotions about her next athletic adventure.

"I'm excited, but nervous because the competition is going to be a lot tougher," she said. "Also balancing school and softball and living on my own for the first time makes me a little nervous."

Whaley will be joining former teammate Krista DeBurger on the Pioneer softball team.

"I'm excited to play with Krista because I will know someone on the team," Whaley said. "She has done great up there. She will be like a mentor to me."

Lady Cats' coach Jon Kasten has no doubt that Whaley has made the right choice.

"Olivia will be a great fit at Transylvania," Kasten said. "I'm so happy for her being able to play at the college that she has always wanted to attend. Transy is getting a great player with wonderful leadership abilities and who is a very mature young lady. There is no doubt in my mind that she will be successful."
